The Problem

There is a global surge in non-communicable diseases (NCDs), driven by unhealthy diets and physical inactivity. The lack of knowledge or engagement in preventive healthcare practices has sparked urgent calls for action worldwide.

Poor employee health has far-reaching implications for businesses

Rising Healthcare Costs

- Rise in medical claims cost around 8% in Africa and 9.2% for Ghana.
- Medical inflation of 6–10% annually.

Loss in Productivity

- Rise in medical claims cost around 8% in
- Average of 73 days lost per employee each year from absenteeism.

Challenges with Retention

- 1 in 2 employees cite wellbeing benefits as important for staying in a job.

Our Solution

WHO Guidelines

The WHO Guidelines on physical activity and sedentary behaviour provide evidence-based public health recommendations for children, adolescents, adults and older adults on the amount of physical activity (frequency, intensity and duration) required to offer significant health benefits and mitigate health risks.

For the first time, recommendations are provided on the associations between sedentary behaviour and health outcomes, as well as for subpopulations, such as pregnant and postpartum women, and people living with chronic conditions or disability.

Weekly Recommended Time Range

WHO recommends at least 150 minutes of physical activity each week – that's just 30 minutes a day, 5 days a week, to boost health, energy, and overall well-being.
